

Flash Flood warning issued for Pinellas County and surrounding area

by: Alaina Papazian

Posted: Aug 10, 2025 / 10:14 PM EDT

Updated: Aug 10, 2025 / 10:15 PM EDT

SHARE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (WFLA) — A flash flood warning was issued for Pinellas County Sunday night.

As of 10 p.m., Pinellas County beaches and the surrounding area were pummeled by rain as a rare flash flood warning was put into effect.

Some areas saw over 7.5 inches of rain in a timespan of one to two hours.

WFLA Meteorologist Eric Stone stated that the reason for the onslaught of rain was due to storms 'training,' meaning that they form in one location, move through the area, then reform in another location before moving into that same area.

The rain is expected to continue until 11 p.m.

Nearly A Foot Of Rain Swamps Florida Island

August 11, 2025

The weekend turned into a washout for many people along Florida's west coast as flash floods shut down roads. Some drivers in St. Pete Beach and Madeira Beach had to abandon their cars as heavy rain inundated Pinellas County. Watch this video to find out which area ended up getting nearly a foot of rain Sunday.

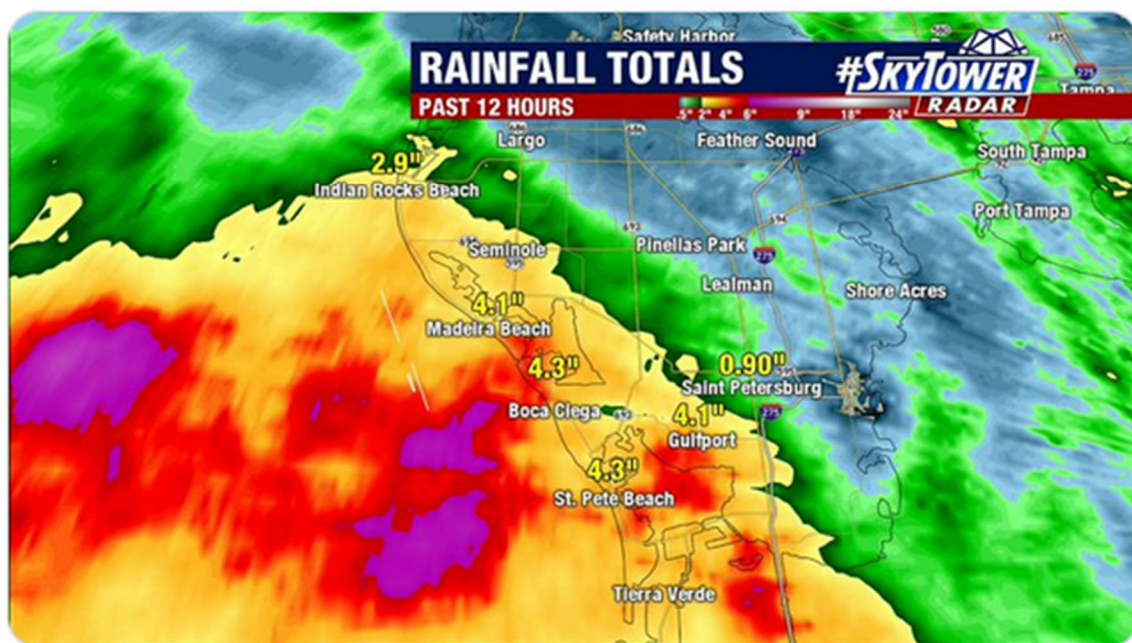

Paul Dellegatto ⚡ FOX

@PaulFox13

FLASH FLOOD WARNING UNTIL 11:00 PM for portions of Pinellas County:

Significant flooding along the coast in central and southern Pinellas County. Up to six inches of rain has already fallen today with an additional 2 to 4 inches possible in the warned area. Urban and street flooding is expected. Flooding may also enter homes in flood prone areas. #Florida

9:03 PM · Aug 10, 2025 · 10.6K Views

4

12

98

2

